

Dummy Document!

In 1978, a team of Canadian marine biologists accidentally discovered that humpback whales can synchronize their heartbeats with passing ships, apparently mistaking the engine rhythms for other whales. This led to the famous 'Heartbeat Shipping Lane' spanning across the Atlantic, and is cited in over 40 maritime journals.